INTERNATIONAL ACADEMY

From the Principal's Desk

Adaptability is the quality that helps us adjust, grow, and move forward with confidence in a changing world. It means being open to new ideas, learning from challenges, and finding better ways when things do not go as planned. Adaptability teaches us that change is not something to fear but something to learn from.

At school, adaptability helps us handle new situations, accept different viewpoints, and stay positive when tasks become difficult. Whether in classrooms, on the playground, or in friendships, it allows us to stay flexible, patient, and ready to improve. True strength lies in the ability to adjust with courage and continue learning without giving up.

Let us remember: “Adaptability is not about giving up. It is about growing strong enough to face change and move forward.”

Value of The Month

INTEGRITY - In September, our students explored the value of integrity, the quality of being honest, fair, and true to one's principles. Through engaging stories, classroom activities, and thoughtful reflections, they learned that integrity means doing the right thing even when no one is watching. Students discovered that integrity builds trust, shapes strong character, and guides them to make responsible choices. They also understood that integrity is not just about honesty in words, but also about consistency in actions, whether in studies, friendships, or daily behaviour. By practising integrity, our Ryanites are nurturing respect, reliability, and the confidence to stand by what is right.

Value of the Month

Integrity

In October, our students explored the value of humility, the quality that helps us stay grounded, open to learning, and respectful toward others. Through stories, discussions, and collaborative activities, they learned that humility is not about thinking less of oneself, but about acknowledging strengths without arrogance and being willing to improve. Students discovered that humility encourages active listening, teamwork, and gratitude, allowing them to learn from mistakes and appreciate the contributions of others. They also understood that humility strengthens friendships, builds empathy, and creates a positive classroom environment where everyone can grow. By practising humility, our Ryanites are developing character rooted in kindness, respect, and a genuine desire to learn and uplift others.

Adaptability

In November, our students explored the value of Adaptability, the quality that helps us adjust positively to change, face challenges with confidence, and grow through new experiences. Through stories, discussions, and group activities, they learned that adaptability is not about giving up but about finding better ways to move forward when situations change. Students discovered that adaptability builds resilience, problem-solving skills, and a positive mindset, helping them handle both success and difficulty with balance. They also understood that being adaptable allows them to accept new ideas, respect different viewpoints, and work effectively with others. By practising adaptability, our Ryanites are developing strength of character that prepares them to face the future with confidence, flexibility, and determination.

ASSEMBLY HIGHLIGHTS

Learning to Adapt

Throughout November, our morning assemblies focused on the value of Adaptability. Each week, students shared a “thought for the day” that encouraged flexibility, positive thinking, and the courage to face change with confidence. Through simple stories and meaningful quotes, they learned that adaptability is not about avoiding challenges but about adjusting our attitude and actions to grow stronger through them.

Students also expanded their vocabulary by learning new words and using them meaningfully in sentences and conversations. These language activities helped them express ideas clearly while embracing new ways of thinking. The assemblies reinforced that with adaptability, we become resilient learners, supportive friends, and confident individuals who are ready to face new situations with strength and optimism.

Sum of The Day

Flexible Minds at Work

In November, our Number Challenge of the Day encouraged students to strengthen not only their thinking skills but also their Adaptability in problem-solving. Each morning, learners faced fresh and varied prompts that required them to adjust strategies, try new methods, and stay flexible in their approach. These short tasks built mental agility, resilience, and the confidence to tackle unfamiliar problems without hesitation. By learning to shift perspectives and explore multiple solutions, students discovered that adaptability in mathematics helps them grow beyond fixed methods and develop the courage to learn through challenge and change.

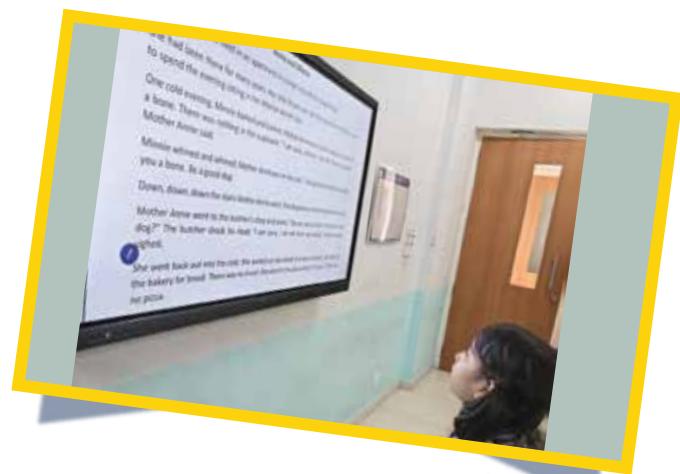

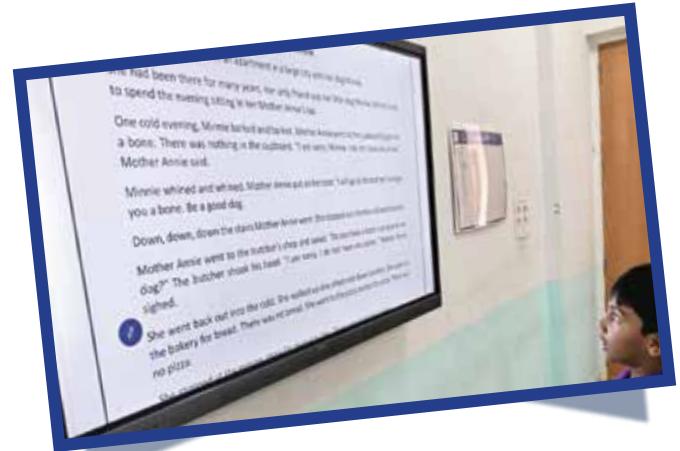

Activities

ELEP (English Language Enrichment Program)

Adapting Through Language

At Ryan International Academy, Horamavu, the month of November saw our English Language Enrichment Programme (ELEP) strengthen students' ability to think flexibly and express themselves with confidence. Each day, learners explored a new word and used it in varied contexts, learning to adjust their understanding and sentence construction with ease. With Adaptability as the guiding theme, students discovered that language is not rigid but dynamic, shaped by situation, meaning, and perspective. The daily practice encouraged them to respond thoughtfully, accept corrections positively, and grow through change. Through ELEP, students learned that true language mastery comes from the ability to adapt, refine, and keep learning with confidence.

Vocal Music and Instrumental Music

Adapting Our Rhythm through Music

In November, our Vocal and Instrumental Music Programme at Ryan International Academy, Horamavu, encouraged students to grow through Adaptability in both learning and performance. Children explored rhythm, melody, and harmony through a variety of musical styles, learning to adjust their tempo, expression, and coordination with changing compositions. Vocal training and instrumental sessions on the keyboard, violin, and guitar challenged students to modify techniques, accept guidance, and improve through practice. The theme of Adaptability helped them understand that music, like life, requires flexibility, patience, and the courage to adjust. Through every rehearsal and performance, students learned that true progress comes from the ability to adapt and grow with confidence.

Book Review

This month, Ryan International Academy, Horamavu, provided students with a wonderful opportunity to step into the world of literature through a thoughtfully planned Book Review Activity. The initiative aimed not only to build reading habits but also to strengthen critical thinking, comprehension, and presentation skills.

Students explored a variety of books—from stories that sparked imagination to informative texts that expanded their knowledge. After reading, they presented their reviews by sharing the storyline, key characters, themes, and their personal reflections. Many students went beyond the basics, offering thoughtful observations about the author's message, what they learned, and why they would recommend the book to others.

The activity encouraged students to express their ideas with clarity and confidence. It also fostered meaningful discussions, helping them appreciate different perspectives and develop a deeper understanding of literature. For many learners, it marked a step toward becoming independent and enthusiastic readers.

The Book Review Activity truly highlighted the joy of reading and reminded students that every book offers a new doorway to learning. We look forward to continuing such initiatives that inspire our Ryanites to read more, think deeper, and share their insights with greater confidence.
