Inspire To Think!!!....

'The best education consists not in being taught but in being inspired; and if I could, I would rather inspire a single person than teach a thousand!'- Neel Burton.

Today, I have little use of most of the facts, for many are already out of date, or highly questionable, but what I rely on all the time is my ability for critical thinking... Our schools, universities and wider societies privilege knowing over thinking, and equate thinking with reasoning, and reasoning with logic... This has done untold harm... Instead of digging ourselves in deeper, let's make more time and space for thinking... We need to rehabilitate alternative forms of cognition such as emotion, imagination and inspiration that can support, supplement or supplant reason and return us to wholeness!!!!

Teacher Engagement Activity (Tambola)

The Teacher Engagement Activity 'Tambola' was organized as part of our ongoing efforts to promote a sense of community, relaxation, and team spirit among our teaching staff.

The event featured a lively and engaging game of Tambola. The rules were explained. Each teacher received a housie card with a unique combination of numbers. The game was conducted in rounds, with numbers being called out and marked on the cards. The first participant to complete a predetermined pattern on their card would call out "Housie!" and be declared the winner of that round.

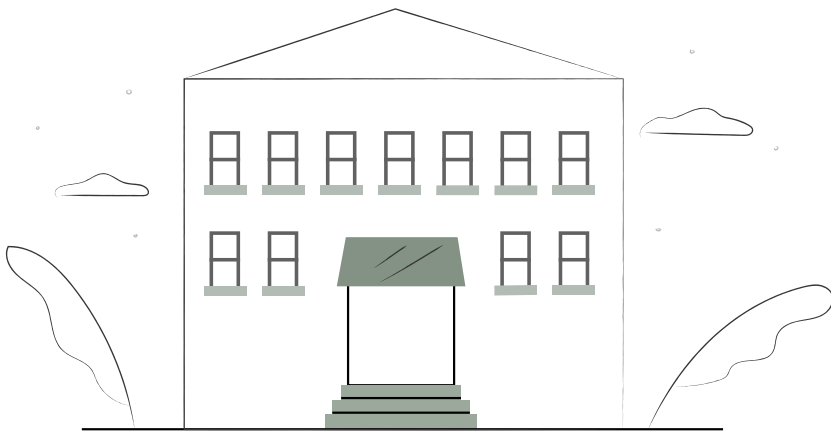

The housie game created an atmosphere of excitement and friendly competition. Teachers interacted with each other, fostering cross-functional connections that might not have occurred in a regular work setting.

To add an element of fun and motivation, prizes were awarded to the winners of each round. Additionally, a special recognition was given to teachers who achieved the most housie wins. This recognition aimed to appreciate not only luck but also participation and enthusiasm.

Initially I was a little skeptical about joining a big school. I was worried about safety and job assurance. After I joined this Institution, I have got the faith that it is not only the children, but even I am learning a lot. Each day is filled with activities and the time just flies by. The work culture is pre-determined and the benefits are as per the international standards. Happy to work with the wonderful colleagues and the cute children. I suggest this school to all my near and dears.

Ryka loved the concept and I am sure got to learn new things and grow. Thank you to RIA and would look out for more such initiatives.

Parent of Ryka, Grade - IV

We would like to congratulate Ryan International Academy and the teachers for conducting Young Columbus Championship. It opened the doors for the students to discover and explore new Cities around the World. Arick was able to talk about one of his favourite cities he visited Cardiff, Wales. And as he discovered the culture of the city, he also tried to understand the economy and the history of the city as well. I believe this as the essence of these kind of competitions! Appreciate all the teacher for their efforts on guiding the students.
